

Retirement Communities

Designed to provide a complete lifestyle for those of retirement age, Retirement Communities offer private living facilities with support services ranging from meals; health care monitoring; transportation to and from appointments; linen service and weekly housecleaning; and educational and entertainment services. Communities may offer independent apartments, assisted living residences, and/or nursing home care. Costs vary.

Many facilities have Nursing Homes and Assisted Living facilities on their campus. Some facilities are now offering continuing care retirement communities (CCRCs). CCRCs usually require a large entrance fee, as well as a monthly fee for care and services. The entrance fee may be partially refundable.

More detailed information on specific services, hours of operation and other amenities is available at the Online Senior Resource Guidebook at www.senioranswers.org/default.aspx. The Online Guidebook includes search features, as well as paid links to individual sites including optional online tours.
